About SIN 2023

The 16th International Conference on Security of Information and Networks (SIN-2023) provides an excellent international forum for sharing knowledge and results in theory, methodology, and applications of Security in information and networks. Papers, special sessions, tutorials, and workshops addressing all aspects and issues of security in information and networks are being pursued. The conference invites significant contributions from researchers and industrial working on the development of cryptographic algorithms, security schemes, cryptanalysis, application security, system security, cloud security, and network security. The conference aims to provide a platform for researchers and practitioners from both academia as well as industry to meet and share cutting-edge advancements in the field of information and network security.

Topics of Interest

Authors are solicited to contribute to the conference by submitting articles that illustrate research results, project outputs, surveys, and industrial experiences that describe significant advances in the following areas, but are not limited to:

Network defence	Tools and development platforms
Malware analysis	Security in cyber-physical systems, Security in Blockchain
Security in space science	Key management and distribution
Virus and worm analysis	Big-data trust, security, and privacy
Security in mobile devices	Security and privacy social networks
Cloud and system security	Security-aware software engineering
Artificial intelligence security	Security in embedded systems and IoT
Web and application security	Security education and innovative curriculum
Security in biometric systems	Symmetric and asymmetric key cryptography
Privacy and trust management	Computational intelligence techniques in security
